ORDERED BY HUERTA

Many Months Ago and Con-signment is Now Due at Manzanillo or Salina Cruz. President Wilson Hears From American Delegates.

[associated press telegram] Washington, May 28.—The main stages of the negotiations at the Niagara conference have been reported to President Wilson and are now understood to have reached a reosonably complete form on essentials of the proposed agreement.

There has been no effort, so far, to weld the essentials into a protocol but the various propositions stand out distinctly and will readily admit of an amalgamation into a complete protocol when it is found necessary to do so. The understanding here is that these elementary propositions have been agreed upon by a process of elimination of the issues which it at first had been impossible to compose.

Closely following the landing of munitions of war for Huerta from the two German liners at Puerto Mexico, a large consignment from Japan is due at Manzanillo or Salina Cruz on the west coast. Word has reached Washington that the Japanese cruiser Idzumo which has been hovering around Mazatalan has gone down the coast and though the lat-ter report is lacking in official confirmation so far, it is understood that like the German cruiser Bremen which conveyed the Ypiranga to Puerto Mexico on the east coast the Japanese warship will accompany the etxpected merchantman to one of the ports for transportation by rail to the Mexican capital. The Japanese arms and law at least, to prevent consigners changing destinations of cargoes.

Absence of a proper manifest however, is punishable and General Funston would be within his rights in detaining the Bavaria if reported that the steamer had appeared at Vera Cruz without such a document.

At the White House today it was said that no formal agreement for the pacification of Mexico had been received from Niagara Falls. The reports of the American delegates which have been coming in at each stage of the negotiations however have been so favorable that the situation, it was said, would permit assembling the decided points in the form of a definite agreement very soon. Representatives of the constitutionalists conferred with Secretary, Bryan again today and reiterated that steps were being taken to definitely establish relations for the Carranza element with the Niagara conference. They added that constitutionalist delegates, if they go, would have the same rights and powers as are enjoyed by the American wagon and seriously injured today. From Gen. Huerta to Provisional President and Four Cabinet Ministers, One of Main Points-Much Work Has Been Done.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM] Niagara Falls, Ont., May 23.-Meliation conferences have been in progress a week today, and already many of the essentials of a plan for the pacification of Mexico have been agreed upon. Details are being withheld until there is a complete agreement on all subjects but the main points of the plan on which both sides at present look favorably are the following:

The transfer of the executive power of Mexico City from the hands of General Victoriano Huerta to a provisional president and four cabinet ministers. This talked-of body has often been referred to as a commissin or junta.

These five men would share equally the responsibility of putting into operation a program adopted at the conference here for the conduct as soon as practicable of new elections for president, vice president and members of congress. The five men would be neutral persons so far as political affiliations are conderned but would be representative men, as nearly acceptable as possible to all factions in Mexico, including the con-stitutionalists and approved also by the American government.

Prompt recognition of the provisional government would be given by the United States. Withdrawal of American troops is expected by the Mexican delegates to follow as a matter of course as soon as the new government is installed. While there may be no formal declaration on the subject, the Mexican delegates expect a tacit understanding to be reached that the United States arrest her that she might spend the transactions of the present Mexican

The track was used today for final practice for all the drivers who will start in the race Saturday and on Friday it will be closed, so that it may be cleaned and the oil washed off. > To Newark Advocate: -- It seems to me Rev. Sparks should be generally commended for his attitude towards our public play grounds. His criticism of the treatment of this institution by some of our civic administration bodies is certainly just. It seems to me no argument is necessary to demonstrate that play grounds are beneficial to the city and surely after the successful operation of White Field and Heisey Field last year no one can justly criticise

Now after the tax payers' money has been used to purchase the needed ground, and fuller spirited and generous friends have raised a fund of nearly $5000 to equip the White Field and Mr. Heisey and the American Bottle company have at their own expense furnished equipment derstanding to conceive, how those for East End and North End play women should have any true grace, or grounds, it is up to the Board of in a resolution passed wherein it agreed to maintain the play ground under efficient supervision and to maintain this play ground free to

Typhoid In Vegetables, Garden earth should be most carefully kept free from contamination by matter which may contain the germs of typhold fever. Investigations by the United States public health and marine hospital service show that plants growing in infected soil carry upon their leaves and stalks the organisms existing in the earth. In order to determine with what tenacity the bacilli were adherent to the plant a leaf of lettuce from an infected bed was subjected to washing. The leaf was placed in a conical glass containing sterile water and thoroughly cleansed by means of a platinum needle. This was repeated by passing the leaf through two other washings. After the third washing the leaf, in an almost macerated condition, was rubbed on a cleaning plate. Upon this plate were found positive traces of typhoid fever

Travelers in cholera countries are usually warned by physicians to eat no raw fruits or vegetables since they may bear the germs of the disease. Similar caution might well be observed so far as vegetables are concerned in a community in which there are or have recently been many cases of typhoid.

Wisdom from Washington

Washington, May 29 -- [Special.]-The everlasting and unsettled problem of the disposition of superannuated clerks in the government service is a subject of great interest in Washing-This is especially true when any head of a department or bureau dismisses these old employees, for at once there our play grounds the most complete | arises a considerable clamor about the injustice of turning aged persons adrift who have been so many years in the government service and bave accumujated nothing for the support of their declining years.

A civil service pension list is obnoxious to most members of congress. 🛧 and, although it has warm supporters, there has never been any legislation on the subject. It has been suggested that a certain portion of the pay of cheers us like the Huerta should be so all-fired anxious each employee should be deducted and deuce, it's such to save his face. Washington Her- a fund created for the support of the superannuated. While this is popular with the older employees, it is bitterly contested by the younger, for they do not think that they should be taxed in order to support others.

There has been more discussion on this subject in the last few years on account of the efforts that have been made to increase the efficiency of the departments and especially after so much time and money were spent by the Taft economy commission to improve the government service.

Civil Pensions Bitterly Contested.

No subject arouses more bitter opposition than any measure which proposes a civil pension list. Generally in these discussions the entire subject of the retirement of officers of the army and navy and of judges of the courts is attacked, and there is a great deal of criticism of the retired lists which have been created heretofore.

Sometimes the bureaus have made good records for efficiency by weeding out the old and superannuated employees. This has been accomplished them to other bureaus. A head of a bureau, anxious to make his service markedly efficient, will oftentimes be able to shift an inefficient employee upon some bureau officer who is more complacent, with the result that some bureaus become the haven of "dead wood," so called, and thereby incur a demand for a general reorganization.

Nothing Is Ever Done.

There are few heads of departments who will cast adrift any of the old men and women who have been long in the government service and have no means of support. I have heard a number of cabinet officers say that they will not be responsible for casting adrift these derelicts until congress so determines by legislation. Congress will not take that action, and up to the present time congress has not provided a pension list for these old employees. Consequently the discussion goes around in circles, and nothing is ever done. But it causes a considerable commotion when some of these employees are dropped from the rolls and their friends make an effort to secure their reinstatement.

Does Not Disturb Barrett.

John Barrett, director of the Pan-American bureau, has long ago decided to take with complacency anything that comes his way. A man that is in the public eye as much as he, and takes such a prominent part in so many affairs of importance, particularly in relation to the southern republics. is sure to have something flung his way once in awhile. More as a joke than as a criticism, Congressman Madden of Illinois took a shot at Barrett during a discussion of Pan-American affairs in the house. He told a story about a man who established a bank in Denver years ago in which nearly everybody deposited his funds. After awhile the bank failed, and the ate a commission for the study of banker called a meeting of the deposirecreation. THE HAIR AND SCALP-PART II Seborrhea, the medical name for dandruff, is so common an affliction that many

LITTLE DISCUSSIONS OF LOVE AND MARRIAGE

BY BARBARA BOYD

The Handicap of Being Spoiled.

"The modern child," said the Clubwoman, a note of exasperation in her voice, "is the most astounding thing in creation."

"What has he, she, or it done now?" laughed the

"We had a reception at the club the other night, and Mr. and Mrs. Horton joined me as I was walking home. It was damp and a little nippy and Mrs. Horton isn't any too well, so I asked how it was that they were walking and not using their car. 'Oh, the children have the car,'

she explained, in the most matter-of-fact way, as if it were quite the proper thing for children to motor and parents to walk. The remark gave me a new light on the character of Ethel and Percy Horton." "And I was at a dance the other night and Charles and I walked home, and Mildred and John Powell joined us and I asked the same question, and their reply was, 'Father and Mother are using the car.' So you see not all children are alike." "In consideration of their parents they ought to be alike," said the Clubwoman, "though, I suppose," she went on, "it is, after all, the parents'

The Engaged Girl looked thoughtful.

"Parents who start by humoring their children and waiting on them and making them think that they—the children—are the lords of the household, can hardly expect consideration and thoughtfulness from them. The exceptional child, and the child who is naturally unselfish and loving. may think things out for himself as he grows older and become the minister instead of the one ministered unto. But not many will. The child who has been waited on hand and foot and has had every whim humored until he is twenty is not going to blossom out over night into the thoughtful, unselfish son or daughter." "It is really not fair to the child, either, is it?" mused the Engaged

Girl. "Mildred and John, whose parents had the car, are much more lovable and popular than Ethel and Percy, who were riding while their parents walked. Selfish people have less than the unselfish, though they think they are getting and holding the most. What people get selfishly doesn't always make them happy. And even when it does make them happy, it is a superficial happiness compared with the joy that comes of unselfish living. I don't believe Ethel and Percy riding luxuriously home in their car knew the happiness Mildred and John had in thinking of their parents' comfort."

"No indeed. A parent really gives a child more by training him to be unselfish and thoughtful of others than by petting him and waiting upon him and gratifying every wish. A spolled child really loses more than does his parents, though as a rule they surely reap a sad harvest."

"And yet some mothers," said the Engaged Girl, very thoughtfully, 'really think they are showing the deepest love for their children by sacrificing their own wishes and letting the children do as they please." "And they are the parents who walk while the children ride, the ones who wear shabby old clothes while the young folks are decked out in all the latest fads, who wash dishes while Ethel plays the plane or chop wood while Percy rolls cigarettes on the corner."

"And it's unjust to the child as well as to the parent," agreed the Engaged Girl: "For such a child has a narrow and warped view of life and misses much of its purest joy."

The Mysterious Thyroid.

The thyroid gland, which is situated about the lower part of the throat, is still a medical mystery.

Practically nothing is known as to its used in the county of disease in it. Goiter is a nonmarignate plant eplargement of the thyroid gland. The swelling may be no more than a mere thickening, or it may grow into a mass weighing several pounds. It is common in mountainous districts and where there is magnesian limestone in the soil and drinking water. Operation may be necessary and is covered in the deed by John M. It is pled to treatment and is rarely fatal. Malignant disease of the thyroid gland is often associated with overstrain or sudden shock: Here operation is generally necessary and is a thyroid removed is in great danger of loaing his wits, more particularly his memory.—Pearson's Weekly.

Wise Mexican Mules.

"The mule in Mexico is a wise animal," says a man who has studied the animal in that country. "A Mexican mule will do just so much work and not a bit more. The riding mule, for instance is fully aware of the distance. down to a rod, he is supposed and required to traverse in the progress of one traveling day, and all the sharpsticks or goads or dynamite on earth won't get him to do a bit more than what he knows to be the correct distance. The Mexicans have got a peculiar saying in connection with this characteristic of the Mexican mule. You ask a Mexican how far it is by muleback to such and such a point.

"'Two days' journey if you are not rushed, but three days if you are in a hurry,' the Mexican will reply.

"His meaning is that if you don't ask more of your mule than you should ask of him the mule will be able to make the trip in two days. But if you attempt to drive the brute he'll soldier on you, and in consequence the journey will take you three days."

Marks of the Beasts.

On every side in the Malay wilds the traces of the beasts—which here live as 19 lots in Wintermute addition, West end near Rail Mill, 15 are together. scheduled, as safe from molestation, as did their ancestors in pre-Adamite days-are visible on tree trunk, on beaten game path and on the vielding clay at the drinking places by the hurrying stream. Here a belt of mud nine feet from the ground shows that an elephant has rubbed his itching back against the rough bark of a tree, and, see, coarse hairs are still sticking in the hardened clay. There a long, sharp scratch repeated at regular intervals marks the passing of a rhinoceros. Here, again, is the pad mark of a tiger barely an hour old, and the pitted tracks of deer of all sizes and varieties surround the deeply punched holes which are the footsteps of an elephant.

-Cornhill Magazine. It Grew and Grew. "My pa caught a wonderful fish," said little Willie. "After it was dead

It kept on growing." "It couldn't do such a thing." "Oh, yes, it did, for every time pa told about it it was bigger than it was before."

Price and Ottality

There are two features of advertising which require elaboration—PRICE AND QUALITY. Naturally, people are always looking for the lowest price they can get, but they want the best they can get for their money. A reason for a higher price is just as effective in business as a low price.

Price figures in the transaction, but it is the quality of the article that counts, after all.

SUMMIT STATION.

The Summit schools closed a very successful year on Friday, May 22. The closing exercises began with the Junior play on Thursday evening, May 14, and so creditably was it performed by the Juniors that it was given again on the following evening to a full house.

On Sunday evening a very able class sermon was delivered by the Rev. F. B Bishop of Columbus,

The Junior-Senior banquet was given by the Juniors in honor of the Seniors on the following Tuesday evening. The menu, consisting of five courses, was served in the most approved style and was followed by a literary program in which many witty remarks were heard and many humorous stories were told, after which impromptu toasts were responded to by the seniors. The commencement exercises were held on Thursday evening, when the church was filled and scores were turned away for want of room. The class of seven, three young men and four young ladies, acquitted themselves in such a manner as to win the admiration of all present. The class address by Dr. J. Knox

Mutgmery was one of the most forceful in the history of the Summit The music, furnished by Sutphen's

Montgomery was one of most forcewas appreciated by all lovers of good music.

The Alumni banquet, the closing event of the week, was held on Friday evening and was probably the most elaborate affair of its kind ever held in Summit. Tables-were spread for more than thirty couples. The menu and the manner of serving, the toasts proposed and the responses

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not eally need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once. Go to

T. J. Evans or to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optona; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Optona tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it, you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses would never required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. T. J. Evans or to any active glasses would never required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given.

How to Keep Your Face Free From Ugly Hairs

(Modes of Today.)
A small, original package of powdered delatone is a necessary toilet requisite; for with its aid the skin can be kept free from hair or fuzz. A thick paste is made with some of the powder and water, and spread on the hairy surface; then in about two minutes it is rubbed off and with it comes every, trace of hair. Washing the skin will trace of hair. Washing the skin will remove the rest of the delatone. While this a simple, effective method and quite harmless, you should be careful to get real delatone. Cairo's Corkscrew Tower.

Writing of the ancient mosque of Ibn-Tulun, Cairo, John A. Todd in "The Banks of the Nile" shows how accidental was the design of its odd larged floor, excellent music. 28-1t looking tower. Ahmed Ibn-Tulun was one day holding a council of state when he allowed his attention to wander and sat idly twiddling a piece of paper between his fingers, shaping it into a whorl. Suddenly he realized that the councilors were waiting for his decision to a question. But what question? At his wits' end to avoid confession of such discourtesy, he continued in silence to twiddle the whorl of paper. Suddenly he spoke: "Call my architect," for the plans of his new mosque were under consideration. The Copt appeared in fear and trembling no doubt. "You see this paper. Make me a tower for my mosque like that." The situation was saved, and the shape of the tower, with its corkscrew outside stair, is there to this day to con-

Easy Borrowing Terms. In the course of a lecture on "Government Finances and Social Life In Japan" before the Japan society in London, Kengo Mori, financial commissioner and attache for the imperial Japanese government, said that in the olden days gentlemen tried to keep aloof from all money transactions. Of course there were borrowers and lenders then, as there are today, and even among the Samurai class. But their agreements, if written at all, were always worded in a manner characteristic of the spirit of the times. One such agreement ran: "Dear Sir-I hereby confirm that I borrowed from you the above mentioned sum of money. Should I not repay the sum you are entitled to laugh at me in public."

country DALE, pretty, youthful, and in-experienced, lingured uncertainly by the stage entrance after her no uncertain rejection by the manager. She wanted that job and she hated to go away. As she stood there up drove Stanley Hilton, a wealthy, idling patron of things theatrical. particularly girls. Something about Violet's attitude pleased him, so he assumed a paternally friendly air and asked her trouble. Though she held aloof from strangers as a rule, there was something invitingly consoling in this man's manner, and she felt the need of consolation so keenly that she told him of her rebuil. At that, Hilton laughed with a condescending friendliness, while looking at her searchingly. He assured that she had hothing to worry about for she could easily be fixed up, and he scribbled a small note for her to give the manager. Violet entered the theater in the midst of a disjointed, ramshackle rehearsal, approached the manager, shooting incessant instructions geyserlike, and hesitatingly gave him the note. He stopped long enough after reading it, to tell the girl she could have a place in the chorus—such was the strength of Hilton's intervention. Violet made good in her job. For some time Hilton watched her approv-ingly, but let her alone after confiding her to the interest of Clara Delane, the star, to whom he was particularly devoted. Clara had ber good points, and one of them was her kindliness toward the youngsters in the profession, and for Violet her friendliness grew into affection. One other person whom she interested greatly was Frank Gordon house elec-trician. In fact, before many days had gone he found himself in love with the small chorus girl, and though diffidence kept him from saying anything to her, he watched over her lealously and was particularly alert in regard to Stanley Hilton.

It happened that when Clara Delane was hurt by a bit of alling scenery Violet was the only person knowing her lines, and to the little ingenue was given the star rôle for the of the performance. She handled it well, and won much praise, attracting again the errant attention of Hilton. He began to haunt the theater more than before, seeking interviews with her which she tried to avoid. One night she remained after every one had left, hoping to elude him.

Gordon, who watched her closely all of the time, waited until she should leave. So he was on hand when fire broke out. In a few seconds the theater was thick with smoke. As he hurried to Violet's dressing room he stumbled over the watchman, already partially over-come with the fumes. He caught Violet up and can with her to the open air, where he found Hilton with his automobile. Putting the girl in the man's arms, Gordon hastened back rescue the watchman, and when he emerged with him Hilton and the girl had disappeared. The next morning the papers announced in large type the heroism of Stanley Hilton, who had rescued a chorus girl from the burning theater. Gordon read this item grimly and let it stand. At the hospital, where Violet was recovering from the nervous exhaustion induced by her experience, she was told that Hil-ton was her rescuer, that her expenses were paid by an anonymous friend, and she received flowers and unsigned notes. After her recovery she returned to the theater feeling that owed Hilton her life, her recovery, and her job, but in her heart she hated him.

Miss Lottie Briscoe, popular Lubin star, is entitled to description as petite, for her 121 pounds of weight are divided between her sixty-one inches of height. Her love for stagecraft dates from babyhood. When only years old she saw her first play, "Romeo and Juliet," which so impressed her that immediately after the performance she gave an imitation that revealed her histrionic tendencies. All through her childhood she took boy roles in big plays, and as she grew older was given ingenue parts. Three years ago in the summer she became interested in moving pictures and has found that work a pleasant niche for the display of her talents.

It was the last night of the engagement. Before the performers came to prepare for the play Gordon slipped into the dressing room with a bouquet of wild violets for his lady, accompanied by a little unsigned note of fare-On her dressing table he found a huge bunch of roses, and tucked among them a note from Hilton, requesting that she show her assent to his proposal by wearing them. En-raged by this, Gordon rushed out of the room, stopped to conclude his official duties by pinning on the bulletin board a notice in regard to the dressing table lights, and then disappeared from the stage world. But he was present at the play. Crouched in the aisle commanding Hilton's box, he waited with a pistol in his hand, prepared to save the girl at any cost, if she allowed herself to make that choice. Meanwhile in the dressing room Violet examined both her bouquets and read her notes. She pondered over them, and compared them with the notes she had received in the hospital, She found that these and the violet note tal-

"Say, Hilton didn't save you from the fire. It was Gordon who done it." he explained briefly, and disappeared.

When the curtain rolled up for her entrance Gordon, lurking in the dim shadows, leveled his cocked pistol on Hilton, leaning forward tensely to read the flower message. The chorus danced on the stage and among the number of trip-ping, twirling flower garlanded girls two men saw one of them wearing a bouquet of wild viclets. Gordon slipped his revolver back in his pocket, and retreated behing the footlights. After the curtain went down for the last time he was conscious of a small figure standing beside him extending her hands to him.

"I don't think there is a nicer flower in the world than the wild violet," she said, "and I want to thank you for these along with all of the others you have sent me, and also But she didn't finish her enumeration, or if she did it was lost in the electrician's cost

"Getting Rid of Algy."

Algy, a perfectly inoffensive English chap, aspiring to the favor of May, star of the chorus, incurred thereby the enmity of Jim, a less favored suitor, who was not above the ignoble step of calling in a gang of toughs to dispose of him. They found their chance one day, supposedly, when Algy sat down in front of a shop on a large trunk. Into the trunk they thrust him and then dashed off for an express wagon. In the meantime the trunk, which May had purchased, was delivered to her apartment, and the proprietor of the shop replaced it with another. This was the one the gang gathered up, drove off with, and dropped carefully in the river, while May was tenderly unpacking Algy and leading him off to the altar, no she could take care of him all of the time and keep him safely.

"Making Him Over-For Minnie."

Ruth, beauty parlor manicurist, loves her swain, Jimmie, an inventive young mechanic, but when her hair dresser colleague. Minnie, picks flaws in the ungroomed appearance of Jimmie she is able to see his defects. With knowledge comes dissatisfaction and she leads the devoted Jimmie quite a life until he happens to get a thousand dollars from an invention. This, at Ruth's pleas, he devotes to personal beautification, until he is such a grand young men as to incite the desire for possession in Minnie, who had begun the trouble not because she wanted Jimmie but simply because she liked to stir things up. Minnie is an effective young woman herself and she has no difficulty in catching the susceptible youth in the meshes of her hair, to speak in appropriate figure. Then Ruth awakens to the disastrous thing she has brought about by beautifying Jimmle just for Minnie's benefit, as well as the danger of having him beautified at all, and by the exercise of amazonian force she drags him away from Minnie, reduces him to the proper state of humiliation, and divests him forever of dandified desires and accompaniments.
